Pound hits fresh highs against both the Euro and the US Dollar (Tom Holian)

Headline: Bitcoin & Blockchain Searches Exceed Trump! Blockchain Stocks Are Next!

Sterling is now trading at a 9 month high to buy Euros and an 18 month high to buy US Dollars as Sterling appears to be the currency of choice at the moment.

Since the start of the year the Pound has increased by as much as 2.5% against the Euro which is the difference of £4,300 on a currency transfer of £200,000.

Against the US Dollar the Pound has moved by as much as 7% which is the difference of over £10,000 on a transfer of USD$200,000 highlighting the importance of keeping up to date with exchange rates on a regular basis particular during this volatile period.

The Dollar has weakened owing to a number of factors and earlier this week US Treasury Secretary Steven Mnuchin has spoken about a "weaker Dollar".

Indeed, it appears as though the US is not overly concerned with the Dollar's weakness and this has led to these fresh highs for the Pound vs the Greenback. Great news if you're considering buying US Dollars at the moment.

Turning the focus towards GBPEUR exchange rates the Pound has made some healthy gains vs the single currency following the release of record low levels of UK unemployment yesterday morning.

As well as this the tone surrounding the topic of Brexit appears to be much more positive at the moment and with phase 2 of the Brexit talks due to start in March could the talks bring us closer to a resolution?

Tomorrow morning brings with the first estimate for UK GDP figures for the final quarter of last year. This could cause a lot of volatility on rates so make sure you keep a close eye out on what happens to Sterling following the release tomorrow morning at 930am. For a free quote call me directly and ask for Tom Holian on 01494787478.
